INTRODUCING
THE ADVERSARIES

Aliens are hiding all over the earth (?!), so use this primer to train yourself to avoid suddenly being killed by one.

BERSERK ALIEN

Traits: strong, big

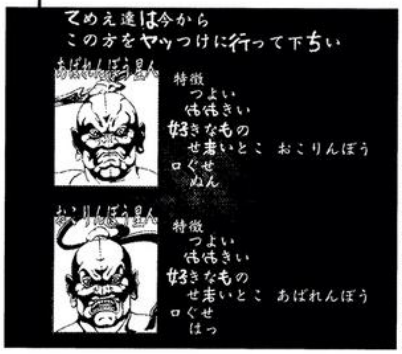
Likes: narrow spaces, ill tempered alien

Catch phrase: nnn

Alien language (is it even intelligible?!)

Gán nú ðá.
Nán pæð ac déað.
Thou nán sige niman.
Thou áðrówian.
Ábréotan thou.
Gecýðig cræft.

There are some archaic words slipped in, making some of it understandable.



IT'S DIFFICULT TO TELL THE TWO APART.

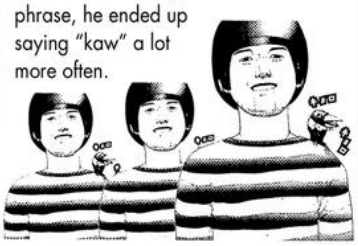
TANAKA ALIEN

Traits: strong, sunny disposition

Likes: birds, choco ball

Catch phrase: ha ha ha

"ha ha ha" was supposed to be a catch phrase, he ended up saying "kaw" a lot more often.



ONION ALIEN

Traits: strong, smells

Likes: onions, friendship

Favorite phrase: just onions will do fine, thank you!

Alien language (is it even intelligible?!)

GANTZ: WHAT AND WHY?.....GANTZ SPECIAL FULL COVERAGE FEATURE!

TANAKA ALIEN

We just recently came across the Tanaka alien, which was much easier to identify with since it had a human form and didn't speak in a weird alien tongue. Some have said this alien was modeled on a specific person.

Two of its characteristics were that it sang the songs "Kantaro of the Northern Wind" and "Beautiful Sunday," and seemed to say "Yuzo?" a lot.

This might lead some to say that it's actually Seiji Tanaka, the first host of "Sing Along with Mommy," who had a hit song with "Beautiful Sunday" and is the nephew of BG4 member Yuzo Gucchi.

The truth of this matter is uncertain, though.

There's a strange bird inside the Tanaka alien. It can't breathe outside the shell and dies.

(I think) this is the TV in the Tanaka alien's room. Who's that on the screen?

If this score was average, that means he'd participated in 30 missions. That would work out to 1 mission every 12 days.

Nishi had been brought to the Gantz world 1 year before Kei and the others and was on the verge of obtaining 100 points before being killed by the Tanaka alien. His tendency to just stand by while others died and become a little too excited while talking about the deaths of others caused him to be misunderstood by the others. But they owe a lot to him for teaching them about the Gantz world and how to use the weapons.

Memorial: JOICHIRO NISHI

Nishi left a strong impression, but his private life was shrouded in mystery. According to Hiroya Oku, "when the missions were over, Nishi just went home and attended school as usual", which alludes to the fact that he actually had a normal life. Knowing this somehow makes it easier to imagine a Nishi that was too shy to talk to the girls in class, or who chased a white ball around in after school activities…

One-line column #2 Characters in the chapter title pages who don't appear in the story itself are drawn depending on the whim of the moment.

GANTZ SO FAR

Kei and Kato are hit by a subway train after descending onto the tracks to help a homeless man, but in the next instant, they find themselves transported to a room in a strange apartment. Also in the room are other people who should be dead, as well as a black sphere named "Gantz."

The black sphere, "Gantz," gives them an order to assassinate an alien. Though confused by this strange order, they are transported immediately to the site with no further explanation.

Kei and the others are told "If you kill the target, you'll return to the real world" and "You'll get your life back if you kill enough aliens to gain 100 points," but they have no way to tell if this information is correct or not. Though scared, they take on their missions to kill the "onion alien" and "Tanaka alien."

At first, the members do their best to get through assignments so they can get on with their lives, but Kei, who is increasingly dissatisfied with his everyday life, finds himself drawn to the stimulation of the Gantz world.

In the third battle, they find themselves matched against the "berserk alien" and "ill-tempered alien." Though overwhelmed by their immense size, Kei takes them head on. The others are inspired by his bravery, but find themselves cut down one by one by increasingly stronger adversaries.

Kei and the others are now no more than toys for Gantz to play with. And he likes his play rough.

GANTZ what and why?

The manga Gantz has so many mysteries that even the editor can forget all the foreshadowing and premises. There's a lot we still don't know about the private lives of the participants. This article reveals the secrets of Gantz including extra info not provided in the story itself. You'll learn much more about Gantz, and yet the more you learn, the more mysterious it becomes.

The only one currently in the Gantz world who has a longer career is the dog. Kato's attitude towards life shows in his reluctance to do any harm to the to the aliens.

The picture on the left is a real Border Collie. It's easy to see why Kishimoto and the others would be attracted to such a pretty dog.

THE DOG HAS A PEDIGREE!!

Since he always seems to have a dumb look on his face and acts like a butter dog, he's often thought to be a mutt, but we've found that the dog actually has a pedigree! "I drew him based on the photo of a Border Collie I saw in a book about dogs." (Hiroya Oku)

HIROYA OKU DISCUSSES THE DOG (over the phone)

Q Can we assume, as Kei did, that the dog's owner was a beautiful single woman?

A Yes.

Q We haven't been told its gender.

A He's a he.

Q So he was a butter dog for this beautiful single woman?

A I've never thought of it before, but sure, why not.

Q How did the dog end up in the Gantz world?

A He didn't like his owner. When out on a walk one day, he got loose and was hit by a dump truck. That's when he was taken to the apartment. He's currently a stray dog, and I doubt he goes back to his former owner when the missions are done.

One-line Column #1 The Gantz apartment is in a complex said to resemble a very famous building in the Ebisu section of Shibuya-ku, Tokyo.
